Custom Jewelry Creates Self-Expression Opportunity -- for both Wearer and Artist

During the past few months, one of my very favorite aspects of having my own studio has been collaborating with clients and developing their own ideas. A few recent examples:

Eleanor's brother long ago gifted her an excellent-quality loose brown Topaz. She wanted a way to wear it that would honor both the stone and her brother, so we chose to set the stone in this sterling silver pin with an art-deco-inspired custom design. "I haven't seen anything like it... It's really, really nice. I'm very impressed," she said.

Paul wanted a custom key fob designed for a woodsy cabin he shares with another family. We designed a cabin logo with a stylized Eagle's talon, and after scroll-sawing each of the 6 fobs, we laser-engraved them at Tulsa's Fab Lab -- then stained them a mahogany color.

Kirby's wife is a teacher who works with children, and he wanted to custom-design a musical/keyboard theme piece of jewelry for her. This slim sterling silver ring with raised black patina keys is creative, yet simple enough to wear while teaching children. "We appreciate being a part of the process, and being part of your new journey," he said.

New Inventory

Even pets can enjoy a bit of self-expression by wearing a CCD-designed Limited Edition
