

CADY CARLSON DESIGNS –

Custom Work Meets Client Specs

For sentimental reasons Kathy wanted to re-use the actual gold and diamonds from her original wedding set and collaborate on a design that wouldn't get in the way while teaching piano. She already had this exact design in mind, and we just helped her get it made. Not everyone has an exact design in mind, though, and who is pickier than a mom, right?! Mine, after losing two rings already, was determined to have one that would not need to be removed because of the prongs catching on knit wear (the most recent reason for taking it off somewhere), must have a diamond marquis shape close to the size of her first ring, feature both white and yellow gold to stay current with whatever fashion in style, and be contemporary yet with a nod to tradition. Voila! The yellow gold background features a digitalized version of the lace pattern from her 1989 wedding dress. Happy Anniversary, Mom!

Glads for the Grads

Help your favorite grad celebrate this 2016 milestone with a custom piece (tassels, anyone?) or something from my growing inventory. Popular young woman gifts include bracelets, charms and stud earrings; for the young gentleman – cufflinks, a tie clip, or even a slim hammered ring.

Tulsa's Charity Auction Season is in full swing,, and you can find CCD donations all around town: at the Emerson Elementary PTA Auction, April 1; online at Bishop Kelley BKbay (Go, Comets!) through April 10:

www.bishopkelley.org/parents-alumni/auction-2016/bkbay;

live at the Greater ASSETS Colon Cancer Exhibit at the AHHA through April 10; OperationArt May 5 at the Campbell Hotel; and TU Uncorked June 24, at the Donald W. Reynolds Center... Also, there is an especially cool exhibit upcoming at Living Arts. "Seeking Shelter," is a juried show featuring works from homeless artists and artists who feature the plight of homelessness. It opens just in time for the Brady District's First Friday Art Crawl, May 6. While in the area stop in and see my new pieces at the AHHA gift shop... And, finally, in case you missed the February 1 Tulsa World, the newspaper featured me prominently on the front page of the Scene section! You can still find the link by googling Cady Carlson Designs.
